

TOUR & EXCURSION CASE STUDY

Welcome Anchorage.

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA

VELVET SEASON AT THE REINDEER FARM

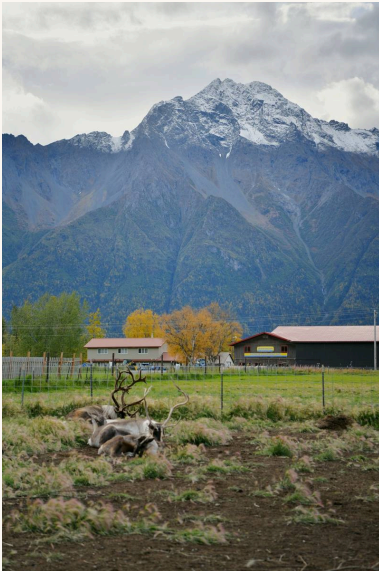

Content that sells the seat, not just the scenery. I photograph the moments that invite a traveler into the action, like a grin mid-ride or a reindeer leaning in to say hello at the fence. Every moment found, never staged.

EXCURSION ONE · SEPTEMBER 25

Antlers, then paws.

Two excursions over two days with Welcome Anchorage. The first: a morning at a reindeer farm, then an afternoon with the sled dogs. The second: a day of wildlife conservation and trails, with glaciers in view.

First Snow Up Top

Grazing under the peaks.

The Welcome Party

Not everyone has antlers.

Close Encounter

He came over to us.

Hand to Mouth

Feeding time at the fence.

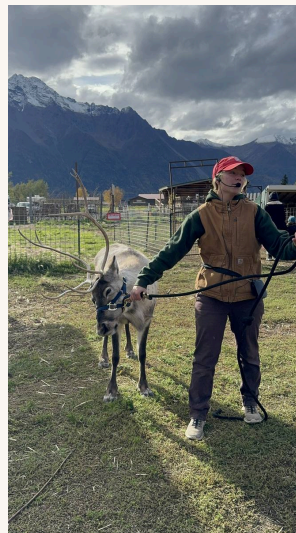

Fence-Line Fluff

Two calves, one fence.

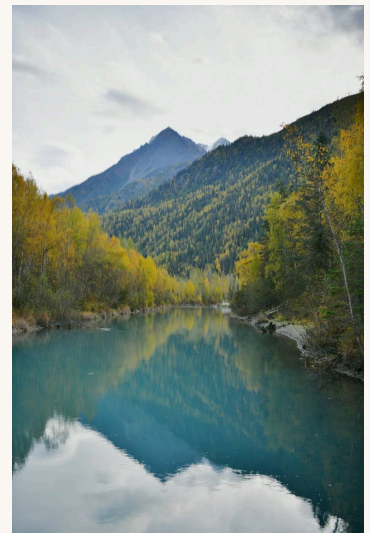

Head On

Antlers in velvet.

Out for a Walk

A handler and a reindeer.

On the Way In

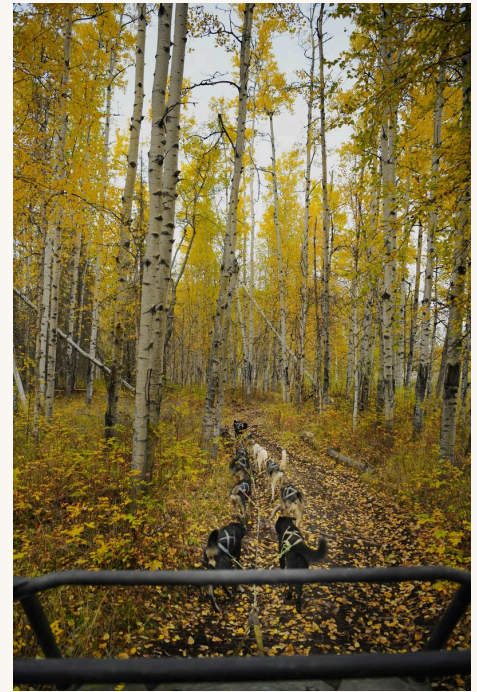

Glacier water by the road.

Already Running

The team, mid-stride.

Front Row Seat

Hands on the bar, team pulling.

Into the Birches

Gold leaves, one dog leading.

Ready When You Are

Every dog in the yard wants to be picked.

The Next Team

Puppies in the doorway, already curious.

*The pause right before the trip starts.
That is a feeling people buy.*

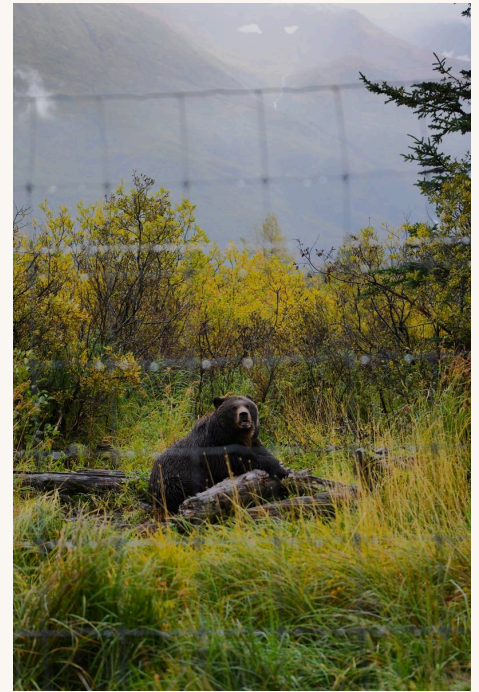

King of the Rock

A bear on the rocks, a raven overhead.

In the Grass

Close, and calm about it.

Afternoon Rest

Room to roam, and to nap.

Hold On

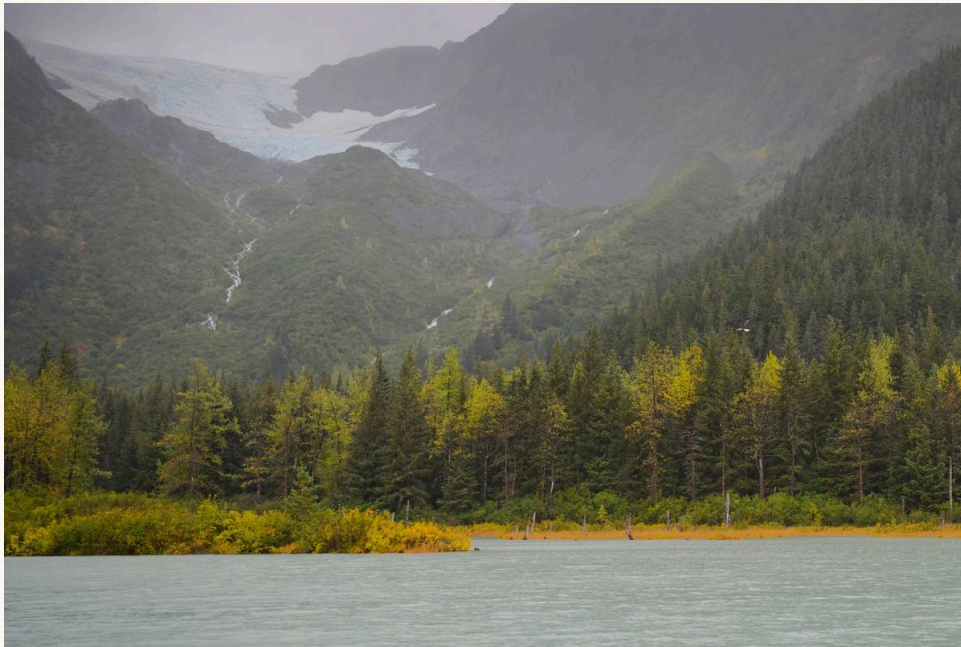

A porcupine at the fence, holding court.

The Boardwalk

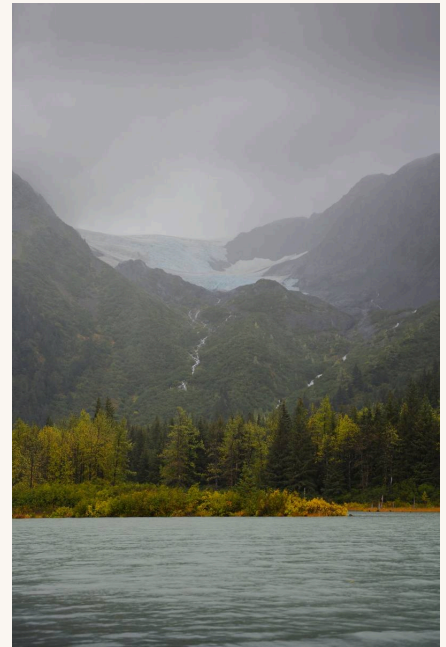

The path between the habitats.

*Look up. That is the shot

Ice Above the Trees

A glacier spilling down the valley, an eagle crossing it.

Low Cloud, High Ice

The lake below the glacier.

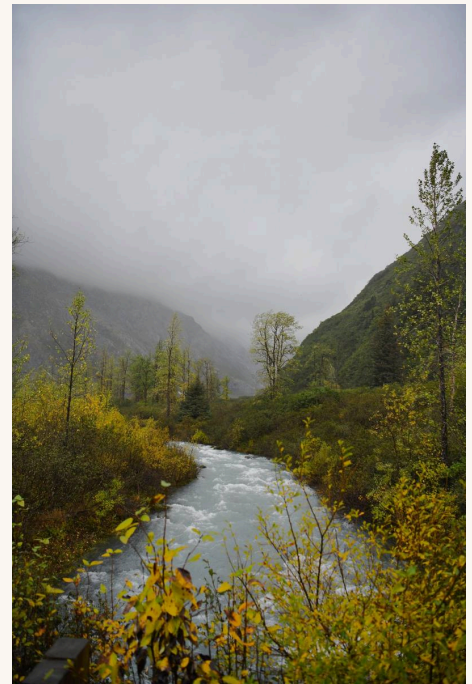

The Falls

Moss on every surface.

Among Giants

The trail, for scale.

Downstream

The river through the valley.

*Half the trip is getting there.
Show that part of it too.*
